Thinking Outside the Box: Why Critical Thinking is Still Relevant

Thursday, February 19, 2015
3:00 p.m. – 4:00 p.m.
AgriLife Center

Nicole Stedman, Ph.D.
Associate Professor, University of Florida
Director, AEC e-Learning

Nicole Stedman is an Associate Professor of Agricultural Leadership. She received her BS in Family Youth Community Sciences (UF) in 1998, followed by her Masters in Agricultural Education and Communications (UF) in 2001. During this time she worked with the Office of the State Attorney Project Payback as a Program Specialist developing Leadership Curriculum for youth at risk.

She completed her PhD in Agricultural Education and Communications (UF) in 2004. She worked at Texas A&M University for three years teaching undergraduate and graduate leadership courses before returning to the University of Florida in July of 2007.

Her current research interests include the development pedagogical strategies which enhance the development of critical thinking in learners. Her primary focus is leadership development at the undergraduate and graduate levels.